

PRESIDENT REPORTS NINE-BILLION DEFICIT

YOUTH STABBED DURING FIGHT; FOUR QUIZZED

Lawrence Breault, 24, In Serious Condition In Clinic Hospital

ROW CLIMAX TO CAFE ARGUMENT

Victim Accuses Barber Although Evidence Is Indefinite Yet

Stabbed during what police describe as a general fight following an argument in a cafe on South Broadway at 1:40 a. m., Lawrence Breault, 24, of 608 Aetna st. is in a serious condition in the Central clinic hospital today.

Breault is suffering from deep gashes in his left side and left arm and, according to police, accuses Nick Melika, Salem barber residing on Penn ave., as being his assailant.

Four men held, among them Melika, all of whom are reported by Police Chief Ralph N. Stoffer to have participated in the fight, are being held in the city jail for questioning by Stoffer and Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty.

Breault's condition at noon was reported "fair" by hospital attaches. The stabbing occurred, police were told by witnesses and participants, in front of the Oriole cafe, South Broadway, after an argument which started inside the cafe.

A friendly, verbal debate over the pugilistic abilities of a Salem amateur boxer which later developed into a heated exchange of names and blows that involved several persons is reported to have precipitated the stabbing.

The argument reached the fighting point when members of Breault's party began calling Melika names, according to police. Breault was accompanied at the cafe by his father, William, and Stanley Danielak, and a cousin of the latter.

Father Acts As Peacemaker
The father, Aldie Breault, told police that he intervened in the role of peacemaker in the argument inside the cafe, then, after the debate was halted, began walking home with a friend. His son, he said, had apparently started for home in an automobile.

As he began walking home, the father told police, he was accosted on the street by Melika who asked him where his son was. Breault said that he told him that Lawrence had gone home then quoted Melika as saying, "well if I don't get him now I'll get him later. It's all the same to me!"

The son, witnesses reported to police, struck Melika and called him names during the argument in the cafe.

The son testified from his bed at the clinic, however, that he was preparing to go home in his automobile.

TOT'S COUGH WARNING AS HOME BURNS

2-Year-Old Child Awakens Leetonia Family; Loss Is $3,000

Aroused by the coughing of a two-year-old child, members of a Leetonia family were forced to flee in night clothes when their apartment home was destroyed by fire at 2:45 a. m. today.

As smoke fumes penetrated into her bedroom with flames spreading over the entire dwelling, Rose Marie, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Charlotte, began coughing and aroused her parents, enabling them to flee and carry her to safety.

The fire is believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace. The entire home was filled with smoke and flames had already extended to several rooms when the girl's coughing aroused her parents.

The home was part of a two-apartment building. Firemen, unable to carry furniture or other personal belongings of the Charlotte's to safety, centered efforts on prevention of the spread of flames to the west apartment which was only slightly damaged.

Loss is estimated at $3,000. It is partially covered by insurance.

The Charlotte home is located on McKee street, opposite the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Adams whose 12-year-old son Edward was fatally burned when his night clothes were ignited by a grate fire Tuesday morning.

BURNS FATAL TO LEETONIA BOY, 12

Edward Adams, Victim of Grate Fire, Dies In Hospital Here

Edward Adams, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Adams of Leetonia, died at the Salem City hospital at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday from burns sustained when his night gown was ignited by a grate fire at his parents' home, McKee street, early Tuesday morning.

The boy was standing in front of the fire, getting warm after arising from bed, when his night clothes were ignited. His mother and two brothers, John and LeRoy, were attracted by his cries and, in an attempt to extinguish the flames which quickly covered his entire body, rolled him in a comfort.

He was rushed to the Salem hospital by a Leetonia physician.

He was a student in the sixth grade of South Side school at Leetonia. He was born in that village on March 27, 1921, and had always resided there.

Surviving are his parents, four brothers and two sisters.

The funeral service will be held at 9 a. m. Saturday at St. Patrick's Catholic church in charge of Rev. Fr. F. J. Lavery. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Felton Re-elected Scout Executive

LISBON, Jan. 4.—At a meeting here of the executive board of the Columbiana County Council, Boy Scouts, Charles E. Felton was re-elected scout executive. The meeting, held in the office of Probate Judge H. W. Hammond, was in charge of Atty. Lodge Riddle, president of the council.

A report submitted by Mr. Felton showed 701 Boy Scouts in the county, an increase of 100 during 1933, and 32 troops, an increase of two units. These are two "cub" packs in the county.

Last year 319 boys attended the two camps at Millrock and Dunn Eden, and 167 leaders took part in training courses.

The annual meeting of the group will be held here the evening of Jan. 26, probably at the Presbyterian church. A nonpartisan committee composed of Judge H. W. Hammond, Conrad Berg, Leetonia, and Ralph Couch of East Liverpool will submit a report at the annual meeting, as will the auditing committee composed of James S. Hilbert and H. W. Hultz, both of East Liverpool.

NEFF ABANDONS LEGAL BATTLE

Canfield Business Man At Penitentiary to Serve Life Term

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 4.—Cyrus Neff, Canfield merchant, has abandoned the fight to save himself from serving a life sentence for slaying his wife.

In a letter received yesterday by his attorneys, he asked that they carry his appeal no further, Attorney Clyde W. Osborne said this morning.

Sought High Court Hearing
Osborne, Harold H. Hull and Clyde H. Dyson, Neff's attorneys, were trying to get a hearing before the state supreme court, after Neff lost his appeal before the Toledo court of appeals last week.

Neff left Wednesday for Columbus to begin serving a life term in the Ohio state penitentiary.

Mrs. Mary Neff was killed the night of Oct. 20, 1932, when a shot-gun went off in her husband's hands as she lay on a couch in their home in Canfield. Neff declared that the gun was discharged accidentally, but after considerable investigation he was indicted for first degree murder.

After a long and sensational trial last spring, marked by detailed technical testimony regarding firearms and considerable testimony about Neff's domestic affairs, a jury found him guilty of second degree murder, which carries the life sentence.

Rules Against Neff
Pending his appeal, Neff was released on bond after a court fight, but the prosecutor's office carried this issue to the appeals court, which held that Neff could not be freed.

The actual appeal from the conviction was heard by the court of appeals at Toledo, on a change of venue. Two judges upheld the conviction, in a decision last week, but the third judge dissented, holding that Neff was guilty only of manslaughter, and should be sentenced for that.

Doe Captured On Bretz Farm to Die

LISBON, Jan. 4.—A doe caught on the farm of A. W. Bretz near New Waterford is to be killed by Deputy Game Warden L. W. Boring, following instructions received from the state conservation department.

Dr. C. McCandless, Salem, former state veterinarian, declared the deer was suffering from a fractured right hind leg, causing an infection, which has resulted in blood poisoning. McCandless suggested the deer be killed and the conservation department officials acted upon this report.

Ask Road Repair

LISBON, Jan. 4.—Petitions have been filed with the county commissioners seeking the improvement of the Lisbon-Stebenville rd. in Center and Wayne townships.

This road is well traveled, but because of the financial structure of the two townships in the past, could not be permanently improved. It is possible the road will be included in the county CWA road program.

Cast Completed For Play, Feature of Farm Institute

Cast for the three-act play to be the major entertainment feature of Salem's independent Farmers institute, scheduled for Jan. 24, 25 and 26, at Memorial building, has been named by the lecturers of the five granges of the district, which sponsor the institute. Price Cope, chairman of the program committee, announced today.

The play is a comedy, entitled "Always in Trouble" by Walter Ben Hare. Warren Aiken, Mt. Nebo grange, takes the leading role. Other players are: Paul Wilms and Charles Vincent, Salem grange; Lois Ingram and Ernest Kamper, Goshen; Mary Bates and Ralph Huston, Perry; Ruth Oesch and Esther Hoopes, Willow Grove.

Mrs. I. C. Bean, Mt. Nebo, is to direct the play.

Each grange is preparing a short play or special number for the institute program.

Entries for the old fiddler's contest, a new feature this year, should be made at once with Cope. The first 10 applicants will be permitted to play for cash prizes. Each fiddler will be given three minutes. Judges will be appointed to make the awards.

Extends Relief Into 87 Counties

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—The state relief commission has extended its relief activity to 87 of the state's 88 counties today, covering January needs at an estimated cost of $2,888,808.

Aid for 119,765 families is contemplated, as against December figures of 76,888 families in 43 counties alone, requiring a budget of $2,016,890.

Only Harrison county is left out of the budget program. It has failed to set up a local program which would have supplemented state and federal aid.

Following are some of the January budget items:

Allen $22,620; Butler $86,485; campaign $3,379; Clark $24,845; Clinton $975; Columbiana $28,586; Crawford $3,142; Fairfield $2,050; Fayette $1,557; Hardin $3,953; Jefferson $18,600; Knox $1,788; Lawrence $10,468; Licking $12,942; Lorain $13,650; Marion $26,376; Richland $3,250; Ross $5,355; Scioto $16,220; Stark $78,084; Trumbull $60,322; Wyandot $1,067.

Trucks Needed For County CWA Work

A shortage of trucks for CWA road projects exists in this county. County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk has informed E. M. Lowry, CWA director. Approximately 20 trucks could be put at work now, it has been announced.

About 10 days ago a call was issued for additional trucks, but the response was not what was expected by either Kirk or Lowry. In the event truck owners are not able to furnish drivers for their trucks, the CWA office is in a position to draw drivers from the Federal employment list here.

SEEKS TWO BILLION MORE FOR RECOVERY

Roosevelt Outlines Plans Frankly In Budget Message; Expresses No Doubt of Meeting Problem of Borrowing

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—President Roosevelt frankly reported to congress today a prospective nine billion dollar recovery campaign deficit for the next two years and asked that the lid be clamped down to put the government on a pay-as-you-go basis by 1936.

In his message transmitting the budget, he estimated expenditures chargeable entirely to the recovery effort of almost $7,500,000,000 for this fiscal year ending June 30.

He asked for a two billion dollar war chest to continue and taper off this drive in the following year.

All of this, he said, involves government borrowing of ten billion dollars during the next six months, but he expressed no doubt of meeting this problem.

The nine billion deficit, which would swell the public debt to the all-time high of $31,834,000,000, does not take into account prospective new taxes from liquor revenue and plugging of income tax loopholes. There was no recommendation for new taxes.

The executive did recommend restoration of one third of the 15 per cent cut in pay for federal employees, effective July 1, and favored continuation of the three cent non-local mail rate.

As in his personal address in the house chamber yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt spoke optimistically of the business outlook.

Urges Confidence
"Powerful forces for recovery exist," he said. "It is by laying a foundation of confidence in the present and faith in the future that the upturn which we have so far seen will become cumulative.

"The cornerstone of this foundation is the good credit of the government.

"If we maintain the course I have outlined, we can confidently look forward to cumulative beneficial forces represented by increased volume of business, more general profit, greater employment, a diminution of relief expenditures, larger governmental receipts and repayments, and greater human happiness.

It had been pointed out by him earlier in a supplemental talk with newspapermen that the more than ten billion dollars to be spent this fiscal year is not up to the limit authorized by congress.

"The results of expenditures already made," his message read, "show themselves in concrete form in better prices for farm commodities, in renewed business activity, in increased employment, in the opening of and restored confidence in banks, and in well-organized relief."

The prospective seven billion dollar deficit for this year includes $1,660,000,000 additional to be asked from congress for continuing until summer the vast Civil Works administration and financing the home loan bank system.

Wants Lump Sum
Mr. Roosevelt told newspapermen he would just as soon have the two billion dollar recovery fund, he has asked for next year in a lump sum. If congress prefers to itemize it, he does want authority to switch funds from one item to another.

His ideas for use of this two billion dollars next year are roughly $500,000,000 to supplement for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; $300,000,000 to continue the year the civilian conservation corps; and $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 for unemployment relief.

Just when any other mother would have told it to hush, and be a good baby, and not cry, he didn't tell 'em a single thing to do.

Just slipped 'em all a piece of candy (the little Republican babies with the Democrats) and he left 'em feeling that mother had confidence in 'em, and they were all just tickled to death, rolling on the floor with their toes in their mouth, and giggling at each other.

STATE OF THE NATION

The country has learned what to expect from presidential messages on the state of the nation. With the passage of time the messages have taken on more of the aspect of program summaries and less of the aspect of factual accounts.

President Roosevelt's message, delivered to a cheering congress Wednesday afternoon, was in this tradition—a recital of the general direction and broad purposes of the administration. The President struck the chord of its import in this introduction: "I come before you at the opening of the regular session of the 73rd congress, not to make requests for special or detailed items of legislation; I come rather to counsel with you, who, like myself, have been selected to carry out a mandate of the whole people, in order that without partisanship you and I may cooperate to continue the restoration of our national well-being and, equally important, to build on the ruins of the past a new structure designed better to meet the problems of modern civilization."

It was an admirable introduction, so complete in its scope that the text which followed could have been supplied by any American familiar with the purposes of the Roosevelt administration. "We have ploughed the furrow and planted good seed," President Roosevelt stated in conclusion. "The hard beginning is over. If we would reap the full harvest we must cultivate the soil where this good seed is sprouting and the plant is reaching up to mature growth." Mr. Roosevelt could not have said more plainly that most of the remedies authorized to meet an emergency are to be embodied in permanent legislation. It was the most direct statement in his message.

Many of his countrymen would like to hear equally definite answers to other questions which have arisen under the new deal. They would like to know without equivocation the limits of the inflationary course upon which their government has embarked with its policy of free spending and dollar cheapening. They would like to hear their President's opinion on how far the government's credit can be stretched before it cracks under the strain. They would like to know what he sees in store for wage earners under a program which increases their cost of living in terms of cheapened dollars, but does not increase their wages in direct proportion.

Because they continue to have a deep and abiding faith in the intellectual integrity of the President, they will not press him for answers so long as he continues able to convince them that he is making progress toward overcoming these forces which have threatened their welfare. It is as though he had said simply to his countrymen: "The state of the nation continues to improve and I am confident that with your cooperation my administration can win through to success." He is assured of a continuing vote of confidence.

CITY IN DISTRESS

The plight of Los Angeles as the result of a cloudburst on New Year's day elicits national sympathy. In a region where climate either is very good or very bad, the tragic events of the latter extreme are heightened in contrast.

The total of known dead is mounting steadily toward half a hundred as Los Angeles county, one of the most densely populated regions on earth, digs its way through the storm's debris. Side by side with the specter of death stalks the threat of disease from a polluted water supply.

Fortunately, California is learning to take its climatic upsets with better grace than it seemed able to muster under the influence of real estate boomers in the late era of everlasting sunshine guaranteed. The rest of the country, too, is beginning to stifle its disposition to compare ridiculous claims of perfection with occasionally tragic outbursts of natural fury. It rains, even in Los Angeles, and it can rain very hard and very disastrously.

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—For established folk there is something exciting about those spanking new towns constantly mushrooming up, overflows from New York, and linking village to village in far-flung network. The houses are so fresh they have not yet lost an air of intrusion.

Many are so remote the streets are glutinous with rich country mud and are still waiting for that accolade of civilization—corner lights. Occupants are mostly newlyweds. He has a clerkship and she may not give up her stenography until the piano is paid for.

Occasionally there is a sign "To Be Sold at Auction," indicating some young hopefuls did not make the grade. She has gone back to mother until they could try again. But in most instances through the blue and pink curtained windows everything looks bridal, cosy, and intimate.

Now and then there's music of a pale voice or the tiny cry of a baby. Always the feeling domesticity is new and experimental. The becoming arrogance of young hunters running up life's ladder whistling. Yet with a humility rarely found among the more seasoned.

New York's department store vastness is not appreciated save in a chance discovery. For instance, I inquired in one fringing Herald Square for the bird department. Then stepped from the elevator into the midst of an aviary larger than those in most zoos. More than 5,000 canaries, 2,000 pairs of love birds, 1,000 parrots, 400 cockatoos and so on. Such departments have braces of ornithologists with whom the purchaser may confer. It's estimated there are 70,000 canaries in the metropolitan area.

No other dramatic critic has been so widely reviled yet so widely read as George Jean Nathan. Scarcely a producer or player has not at some time been singled by his scorn. Round robins have been sent to editors to fire him and his mail has been threaded with threats. Yet in all his bombastic career Nathan has never been molested in personal encounter. Perhaps his look of innocence saves him Handsome in an almost collegiate way, although in early 50's, he appears as naive as a plow-boy.

Self exiles limping in from Paris on account of the dizzy dollar declare the past few weeks have restored a lost appreciation of American trade, especially in Paris. Hotels and shops show a deference not evident in years. Even sullen concierges in pensions occupied by Americans are abandoning petty prying and sou pinching. But it comes rather late!

With Carol Stone, 17, having made her stage debut, the entire family of Fred Stone will have had a footlight career. While he never expressed himself authoritatively on the subject, it was always Stone's fervent hope each of his children would follow footsteps of their parents. Carol is red-haired and floaty with eager buoyancy. The other

The Stars Say:

For Friday, January 5

The planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of today may be expected to greatly accelerate conditions of a business nature, particularly those pursuits pertaining to publishing, writings, promotion, and publicity. There may also be increase or stabilization of values in real estate, mining or agriculture. But employment has some perilous aspects and an abrupt change or journey may not prove advantageous. Shun speculation and extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a progressive year if engaged in literary work, advertising, promotion, or if possessed of real property, agricultural lands or mining shares. But employment calls for safeguarding and changes, removals or journeys should be made only after wise deliberation.

A child born on this day should be adaptable, talented and responsive although seeming restless and unsettled.

Iva Simms has filed suit against Charles Boyd and the First National bank of East Liverpool the latter executors of the estate of the late Arabella T. Blackburn, claiming $7,500 due for services as a nurse. Executors have rejected the claim. The plaintiff in her petition claims $20 per week for 104 weeks and $25 per week for 220 weeks.

Chronic Cough Doesn't Mean Bronchitis

Recently I pointed out to you the significance of a chronic cough. As I told you, a long continued cough may be a symptom of chronic bronchitis, or some other disturbance of the lung. Today I want to tell you about another condition that is characterized by a persistent and annoying cough. The affliction I refer to is not bronchitis, but it is given by the doctors a long name, "bronchiectasis."

Bronchiectasis is often confused with bronchitis. In both afflictions there is a persistent cough. In bronchiectasis the cough is more spasmodic and the sufferer brings up large quantities of a thick, foul material. As with bronchitis, pain is usually absent and the only discomfort is the never ending coughing.

A Common Ailment
Bronchiectasis, as its name implies, is a stretching of the bronchial tubes. The tubes become dilated as a result of increased pressure within them and a weakness of their wall.

The disease is much more common than you might suspect. It is especially common among workers who are exposed to irritating vapors and dusts. Prolonged exposure to certain irritating dusts leads to chronic irritation, inflammation and ultimately to weakness of the walls of the bronchial tubes. Though bronchiectasis is more frequently met in adults, it may occur at any age. It may be found in children and young adults. In such cases it is usually traced to repeated attacks of colds, to undernourishment or to some severe ailment of childhood.

It is interesting to learn that in adults the disease may be characterized by "clubbing" of the fingers. The fingers become broad and spade-like in shape. In other cases the hands and feet become markedly enlarged. These signs, plus the typical cough, should arouse suspicion that the trouble is bronchiectasis.

The disease is not easily recog-

Kingfish's Nemesis

Eugene Stanley

Essaying the role of giant-killer in the domain of Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's "Kingfish," District Attorney Eugene Stanley is the spearhead in drive to break "Kingfish's" once-powerful hold upon State politics. He is completing plans to prosecute more than 500 of Senator Long's election commissioners on fraud charges.

On this account it is sometimes neglected for years. Fortunately, the diagnosis can be confirmed by an X-ray examination of the lungs, which shows the stretched and diseased bronchial tubes.

Neglect Is Dangerous

As I said, persistent and severe cases of bronchitis are often confused with bronchiectasis. But it should always be borne in mind that if bronchitis is not given the proper attention it may lead to bronchiectasis. Neglect of either ailment results in a serious handicap to normal health and growth. When permitted to go on for years either disease is more difficult to overcome and often times cure is impossible.

Cure can only be expected when the necessary precautions are taken. All irritating dusts and vapors must be avoided. Change of occupation and climate may be essential. In all cases, it is important to remove all localized points of infection, such as diseased teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses and adenoids.

The general health must be improved and the necessary steps taken to build up resistance of the body against colds and other infections of the breathing apparatus. An abundance of fresh air, sunlight, hours of sleep and rest, as well as nourishing food, must not be overlooked in the care of this annoying affliction.

"KNAVE'S GIRL"

By JOAN CLAYTON

CHAPTER FORTY

It was evening now. She and Julian would be leaving soon. The group that had gathered for cocking the game on the veranda was urging them to change their plans and stay.

"I had counted on bridge this evening," Mrs. Tracy was saying. "Are you determined to leave, Julian?"

"Ask Patricia," he said briefly. Mrs. Tracy turned to Patricia. She shook her head. Nothing could make her stay an unnecessary moment, nothing, not even Clark.

"Must you go?" he asked pleadingly at her elbow. "Won't morning be just as well?"

"No," she said. "Please don't say so."

"Are you having a good time, Patricia? You have seemed so strange today."

"I'm tired, that's all. I didn't sleep very well last night."

"What a shame," broke in Marthe, letting them know that she was present. "I slept like a baby myself."

She looked reflectively at Julian. He looked at her. Deep within, Patricia felt herself begin to tremble. No one suspected, Marthe would say to that, Marthe could cheat and win. She could have Clark and Julian too. Patricia could not stop.

She could say nothing to Clark. Her hands were tied by her own sense of fair play, her own sensitiveness, her own feeling for human decency. But she could speak to Julian. On their way back to town, she did.

"I went for a walk last night," she began deliberately. "I couldn't sleep so I went for a walk on the lawn."

"Oh," was Julian's only comment. When Patricia failed to amplify her statement he ventured to say, "Well, what about your walk on the lawn? I'm all agog."

"You know what about it," she answered him levelly.

"I'm afraid that I don't."

"Very well then," said Patricia in a rush. "I didn't mean to but I saw you—and Marthe."

She had got it out. Her heart was pounding. Her face was crimson. Julian was completely undisturbed. He smiled in quiet amusement.

"It was a nice night for a walk," he admitted casually. "Marthe and

I decided that we would take one too. Why didn't you come out of the shrubbery and join us? Still, he added after thought, "still I guess it's just as well that you didn't."

His armor was perfect and bright. They had touched on the subject before, so he thought. But it wasn't the same. This wasn't the same. Patricia felt now that she was fighting for her life. She was not prying. She was not interfering in his affairs. It was just that she must know. The touch of her cold desperate fingers on his wrist startled Julian. Something that he saw in her face erased the smile from his lips. Poor youngster, he thought, and again, poor youngster.

"Go ahead," he said gently. "Surely you have not finished."

She gave him an earnest, penetrating look. Tears stung at her eyelids.

"I haven't any right to question you," she said. "I know that I haven't."

"I give you the right—this once." "Are you in love with Marthe?" "Good heavens, no."

He saw in chagrin that this wasn't the answer she had hoped for. His very real sympathy lessened slightly. Still, he had promised. He prepared gracefully to yield to cross examination.

"Is she in love with you?" "That's an awkward question, my dear," he grinned. "Even I have fleeting moments of modesty."

"I know," faltered Patricia with a kind of wretched bravery. "That Marthe was in the house that time when I started my burglar hunt. I remembered when I heard her laugh last night."

"My word, you are a detective," he said sharply, growing irritated despite his best intentions. "I think we'd better have you out to Holmes. Heaven knows that Marthe isn't any saint. Still I can't think of any particular reason why I should deliver her piecemeal to you."

"She was asking about me last night," put in Patricia, suddenly defiant. "I heard her ask if I were really your niece."

"What of it? I thought you had certain standards of your own, Patricia. I protected you from her last night and now I find today that I must protect her from you. Women," announced Julian Haverholt distinctly, "women make me sick."

The girl dropped her head in shame. Always she thought of herself as superior to Marthe. Marthe only to be brought back again and again to the fact that she was not. Marthe was cheating, was deceiving Clark. Well, she herself was cheating too. It had taken Julian Haverholt to make her see it. How many women, Patricia wondered, liked in after years to remember the meanness, the subtleties of courtship days?

They drove on in silence. Julian was annoyed. He made no attempt to conceal his disappointment in the girl. Half his irritation was based on his own wounded pride but he did not realize it and hence could be cold to Patricia's suffering.

"I know I seemed horrible," faltered the girl, after a long time. Julian did not deny it. "You—you didn't understand," she muttered.

"I understood all too well," he informed her curtly. "You're transparent as a pane of glass. You're wondering just where Clark fits in."

"And if I am?"

"I would suggest that he fits in as Marthe's fiance. It's a role that suits him to a T."

"Do you really believe that Marthe is playing fair?"

"What's the difference, if she can get away with it? I rather think," said Haverholt deliberately, "that Marthe can. Marthe is very clever and Clark, for all his virtues, is a wee bit stupid."

"Clark isn't stupid."

"I assure you, my darling, that he is."

Julian guffawed unexpectedly. Patricia clenched her fists, bit back a flood of angry words. She looked away from Julian at the spinning country-side through a haze of helpless tears. That was the worst of it, she was helpless. Everything was all wrong. It was not right that Julian should be able to laugh at Clark in just this way. Marthe never brought to book as Julian had so aptly said Marthe was clever. Patricia gave her that. "You've been quiet a remarkable time," said Julian presently. "Are you angry with me?"

"Not in the least," replied Patricia in freezing tones. "You needn't be nervous. I have no intention of starting a reform wave."

"Why be so bitter?" "I feel bitter."

"But not about me?" "Hardly. I've learned that lesson at least. I'm just as pleased as you are to have our paths quite separate."

"They need not be separate," suggested Haverholt and reached out for her hand. She jerked away. He looked a shade discomfited, but covered it neatly. "Shall I buy a horse and fall off it, Patricia? Is that the way to your heart?"

"You're not interested," she said distantly, "and I'm not interested, so why pretend? I don't quite hate you and I don't quite like you and I'm sure you feel the same way. So let's have no more of that."

"Speak for yourself, Patricia. Don't speak for me."

She looked up quickly at his tone. "Do you think I couldn't have you if I wanted you?" he asked quietly. "Do you think I couldn't have you if I decided to make you fall in love with me?"

"If you were the last man in the world," she said monotonously, "you'd be a bachelor for all of me."

"You seem very sure."

"I am sure."

She had never been more sure. Julian prudently dropped the subject. He said no more about Clark, nor did the girl. They spoke instead of the possibilities of the tournament with Blair. As Julian declared in the morning they might have saved their breath.

For Reuben Blair, making no comment on the sensational challenge, took a boat for Europe.

Julian was annoyed and disgusted. At least a thousand times he imputed sinister motives to Reuben Blair's European trip. A thousand times he declared that Blair had fled to Paris to avoid the embarrassment of either accepting or declining to enter a battle which he was bound to lose. A theory that was doubtless true, Patricia reflected. Personally she blessed Reuben Blair. That Haverholt had been robbed of his triumph, that his well laid campaign for free publicity had collapsed in a single day meant nothing to her. She was delighted to discover that the newspaper men were willing to cry quits.

"I had it all lined up too," said Julian furiously, and added, aggrieved. "But you can't stage a fight when your opponent pulls a vanishing act."

"You might set up a windmill on Broadway," Patricia suggested mildly. "I'll promise to carry a lance."

Haverholt stamped out of the room. Patricia smiled rather grimly. This cheek was good for his vanity. It might make him a shade less conceited. It was good for her too, she admitted soberly. Her day of reckoning had been postponed. She could breathe easily again. There was no immediately chance that her secret would be dragged to the light. She was still Patricia Haverholt to the world. With luck she might remain so indefinitely.

Navy Birds Poised For Mass Flight to Hawaii

With the Naval Base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as its goal, VP Squadron Ten, of the U. S. Naval Air Force, will leave San Diego, Calif., on January 12, and after a brief halt at San Francisco, will head over the Pacific on the longest non-stop flight ever attempted in mass formation. The six seaplanes to be used in the flight are the same that flew from Norfolk, Va., to Canal Zone last September and later flew from Panama to San Diego. Lt. Commander Kneifer McGinnis will command the squadron on the 2,150-mile flight. He is shown at left in group with his five plane commanders, Lieuts. H. J. McRoberts, F. A. Davis, T. D. Gunn, J. ROME DEBATES NAVAL BUDGET

Officials Warn "Other Nations Already Preparing"

ROME, Jan. 4. While Premier Mussolini and British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon prepared today to converse on the world disarmament statement, the chamber of deputies considered a navy budget report which declared that only a four-power pact can save the world from a naval armaments race of the worst kind.

The report, signed by Marquis Giacomo Medici del Vascello, committee reporter, and accepted as a statement of the government's own viewpoint, warned that the principal world powers "are already arming at sea."

Would Relieve Tension

If the big European nations were to get together on some step looking toward disarmament, world tension would be relieved and the way opened for a broader agreement on arms—including naval as well as land and air—Vascello said.

Citing particularly the naval building programs of America, England and Japan, the report placed blame for the heavy arming of Japan's idea of her "world mission."

This mission, Vascello declared in the report, threatens a race war.

"Japan today invades China," he said. "Inspired by race hatred, she will plan tomorrow against white men."

Then, referring to Japan's naval activities, he added, "The ground work for this future danger from the east is perhaps being laid."

Revealed By Japan

"It was revealed in Japan's recent policies and diplomacy, including her withdrawal from the league of nations. This gesture is of great importance and is highly significant and menacing."

The reporter did not ask greater naval appropriations for Italy, contenting himself with an appeal for a disarmament agreement.

Vascello said the Italian naval budget of 98,731,000 lire (about $7,898,480) for 1934-1935 is 14,555,500 lire ($1,082,860) under that for the current year.

Americans Remain In Danger Zones

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 4.—Many Americans, especially missionaries, persisted today in remaining at their stations in revolt-torn Fukien province despite repeated warnings to evacuate.

The Nationalist government at Nanking urged all foreign powers to withdraw their nationals from danger zones in the province.

Officials of the United States consulate today had succeeded in moving most of the 144 Americans living in and near Foochow to Nantai Island, in the South Min river, but many living outside Foochow, and Amoy refused to seek safety even in the foreign quarters of the two cities.

Denies Charges

CLEVELAND, Jan. 4.—A denial of charges that he drove at an excessive speed and was intoxicated was filed in court by State Senator L. L. Marshall in answer to the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. Leah Montrell, who was struck by his automobile. Senator Marshall declared the woman was injured because of her own carelessness and negligence.

Thieves Take Door

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The town hall police are wondering if maybe the thieves who visited the home of 68-year-old John Court are thinking of building a house.

The only thing they took was Court's back door, including the hinges.

Old-Time Family Doctor Due For Comeback, Dean Says

BY LARRY GREEN, Associated Press Staff Writer

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—The family doctor, who treated about 50 per cent of the ailments of his patients, is due for a comeback, medical men say.

"The people themselves," in the opinion of Dr. J. H. J. Upham, dean of the Ohio State university medical college, "were largely responsible for the spread of specialization among physicians," but he believes there now is a growing demand for the general practitioner—the family doctor who makes his rounds, treating those at home who are unable to visit his office.

"Numerous factors combined to encourage specialization," said Dean Upham, "among them, the automobile, good roads, rapid transit systems and the consequent saving in time of travel."

Became City-Conscious

"These things brought the city, with its many specialists, closer to the rural community. The country thus tended to become city-conscious. The public turned more and more to the city doctor with his x-ray and other gadgets for speedy and definite diagnosis. It was this that the people themselves became largely responsible for the spread of specialization."

At Ohio State, and other medical schools, Dean Upham declared, instructors and advisors are urging medical students to postpone their decisions to specialize until they have engaged in general practice for at least a few years—"for, after all," he asserted, the numerous ailments that afflict the human being are more or less related. Bad teeth may cause stomach trouble, infected tonsils are responsible for a number of ills, and so on down the line.

"We encourage the student to study the medical profession in its broader general scope. To be physicians first—specialists later if they are so inclined. We encourage them to consider the patient and his pocketbook by exhausting the simpler means of diagnosis before resorting to the more expensive agencies of establishing the nature of ailments."

Want Cooperation

"Mind you," he continued, "we are not asking that the general practitioner turn a cold shoulder upon the specialists in his profession. The opposite is true. We want a spirit of cooperation between the specialist and the general practitioner—a spirit of confidence between them, and in turn between the medical profession as a whole and the public they must serve."

Nor is the medical profession over-crowded as many think, said the dean. He declared that in 1933 there were 7,200 physicians in Ohio, while in 1925 this number had increased to 8,500 against an increase in population of 2,000,000.

There is room, Dr. Upham believes, for all the young men and women who are learning medicine, and despite the trend toward the cities and toward specialization, the family doctor "who ministers to the high and low, the rich and poor, through modern roads and fast travel have broadened his field of activity, is still a vital factor in community life."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The hardest work of the staff in one of Pennsylvania's new state liquor stores was to go home. There were locks aplenty, and bolts, too—and all worked from the inside.

After an hour of investigation and conferences, the manager and clerks locked the door of the former bank building and slipped out of the rear, leaving a policeman to keep an all-night vigil.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

MEN say "the old year dies, the new year is born."

But no old year dies, no new year is born. There is no beginning or ending to the year or to time.

We small creatures are born, and we die, and for our convenience and reckoning we chop time up into little sections of 12 months, conveniently selecting as our unit the 365 days that the earth needs to travel once around the sun.

Having sliced up time, each hopes that he will have 70 slices, perhaps a few more. We say, foolishly, "time passes." More wisely it has been said that time remains and it is we who pass.

That is what a majority of us did in 1933, and will continue doing through 1934; and so on until Time himself comes to say, "Time is up."

OUR prohibition era which was to make "our young people forget what liquor tastes like," empty the prisons and insane asylums, cut down hospital attendance, etc., seems to have left many ladies of this nation, including some very young ones, surprisingly familiar with the taste of alcohol.

In Chicago it is even difficult to persuade ladies that the saloon is not for them. Mayor Kelly says, "Womanhood should be held on a higher plane," meaning higher than the brass rail that runs in front of the saloon bar.

The mayor says woman drinking at a bar side by side with men is "entirely outside of woman's normal sphere."

Even the callous will say "amen" to that.

THE fact that you can get a divorce for mental cruelty makes that kind of cruelty important, and Mrs. Irene Peters calls the judge's attention to something in a cruel mental way that seems to be convicting.

"My husband would give the dog a seat at the bridge table. Then he'd remark that the dog didn't play very well, but did better than I."

CONSTANTLY, new, useful work is found for airplanes. The Humane society of Missouri sets a good example, scattering from a sky whet, kaffir corn and ground corn in St. Louis county to feed hungry birds.

Airplanes are used to reforest burnt-over ground, scattering seeds of trees. Vast acres are mapped accurately, easily in inaccessible mountainous territory. Aviators provide reliable estimates on timber values, detect in the air, which cannot be done from the ground, "dunes" that may yield oil and also spot forest fires.

Before long it is to be hoped that scientists will find a way of fighting fires from the air by "laying down" through the air a smothering blanket of some fire extinguishing substance. It can be imagined, therefore it can be done.

It seems silly that men, able to fly, should fight forest fires on foot, with axes and shovels.

Six More Victims Counted In Flood

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Six more victims were added to a growing list of dead in the Southern California flood of New Year's day as searchers prodded grimly through piles of debris today, bringing the death toll to 42.

Official reports listed 72 other persons as missing and fear grew that many of them might be dead. The final toll may not be known for months.

P. P. Pedderson, assistant construction engineer of the county road department, said he would take three months to remove debris and wreckage in the Montrose area, where the greatest damage occurred and two months to clear one of the principal streets, Rosemont.

Scenes that gripped even men accustomed to the horrors of widespread tragedy were unfolded as 5,000 men began the work of reconstruction. The crushed body of a little girl was retrieved from one pile of debris before the eyes of Gov. James Rolph, Jr., who surveyed the stricken districts. Tears came to the eyes of the chief executive.

Wanted a Boy, So He Just Took One

(By Associated Press)

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 4.—A father's desire to have a boy to take the place of his own son, who died in a motor car accident, was given today as the reason why 11-year-old Bobby Walsh was taken from an orphanage.

"I wanted a boy and just went out and got him," the police quoted George W. McDonald, 37, of Omaha as saying after he and the boy had been found in a rooming house after an extensive search which began when Bobby's disappearance from the orphanage last Tuesday. Bobby was returned to the orphanage, none the worse for his experience.

A tip from Robert Barrett that he had seen a "nervous man" and a boy resembling Bobby in the rooming house brought about McDonald's apprehension.

McDonald told police that his wife was dead and that his own son had been killed and seven years ago.

"I must have been crazy," he said. "I was penniless when found, but said that he had 'intended to get a job and take care of the boy.'"

mobile when he was informed that his father was being attacked in front of the cafe. He and other members of his party returned immediately, he said.

Walking out of the auto, witness said, Breault began crossing the street and was met by Mideka. Breault, according to police reports, struck Mideka and knocked him to the street and, while the two continued their battle, friends of both men began fighting among themselves, police were informed.

Breault is Stabbed
The fighting stopped when Breault cried out that he had been stabbed and was seen lying in the street, blood gushing from wounds in his side and arm. He was rushed to the hospital by a friend while others notified police.

Patrolmen, Narr Count, Homer Veon and James Hassey responded to the call and began rounding up suspects in the case. Seven men were arrested and lodged in the jail but three were released early this morning.

Witnesses to the street fight said that it was too dark to testify as to who stabbed Breault and Police Chief Stoffer said that no direct testimony has yet been produced to support the victim's statement that Mideka had wounded him.

Mideka had not been questioned up until noon.

Stoffer reported that charges of street fighting and disorderly conduct will be filed against at least three of those now being held in the jail. A fourth suspect, he said, may be discharged this afternoon.

Father Is Held As Slayer of Children

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Police held John Piotrowski, 27, today as the slayer of his two children, while they searched for John Panfield, a roomer, allegedly beaten by Piotrowski and left for dead by him in a patch of weeds.

Piotrowski, police said, confessed to Police Captain John Pateck and Deputy Coroner John J. Butler that he beat his wife, Ann, and his three-year-old daughter, Ann, with the barrel of a shot gun and drowned his infant son, John, Jr., in a tub of water yesterday. The girl died later in a hospital.

Desire To Adopt Boy In Poison Case

MALVERN, Ark., Jan. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Thompson would like to have four-year-old blue-eyed, blond Clyde Colley of Akron, O., back again. They hope it can be arranged, through a formal adoption.

After Clyde's parents and his two brothers died from the effects of poison grape juice they drank at a picnic in the woods near Benton, Ark., the Mitchells, who have no children, took him into the home. Clyde, only member of the family to survive the poisoning, was taken back to Ohio after the trial of Mark H. Shank, Akron attorney who was sentenced to death for the murder of the boy's parents and brothers.

N.E.O. District Jotted With Crucial Cage Contests This Week

Big Ten League Foes, Tri-County Rivals to Clash in Big Battles

Basketball takes a firm stranglehold on the interest of North-eastern Ohio sports addicts as rival teams involved in various championship contests collide in a series of important passing duels this week.

While Salem High's unbeaten quintet seeks its fifth victory in a row here Saturday night, meeting Youngstown Chaney, members of the Big Ten and Tri-County leagues clash in crucial tilts in other sectors.

A Columbiana county game, Wellsville at Lisbon, is booked Friday night.

Brown Fears Chaney Team

The stock of the Youngstown Chaney team dropped considerably as the team bowed by a 20-18 score to Sharpshooters Tuesday night but Coach Herbert Brown is drilling his lads with real seriousness, feeling certain that his squad is in for a hard battle.

Reserve teams of the two schools will clash in the prelim at 7:30. Davey Williams of Girard will referee both frays. Tickets are on sale at the V. L. Battin & company and J. H. Lease Drug company stores.

The Alliance-Massillon battle Friday night is the most important as regards this week's Big Ten league events. Another game, Dover at New Philadelphia, the same night, however, shouldn't be overlooked for the Phillies, in spite of a bad start, may upset their ancient neighbor and rival.

Two League Tilts Saturday

Two more league contests will be played Saturday night with Niles invading Alliance and Massillon tackling Dover at Dover.

East Liverpool's undefeated aggregation will be ranked as a really great quintet if it evades defeat in two contests slated during the week. The Potters, ranked among the district's best, will oppose Steubenville Friday night and on Saturday oppose Scienceville, 1933 N. E. O. district champ.

Invading Lisbon Friday night, Wellsville takes to the road again Saturday, playing at Akron Garfield. Youngstown South plays at Struthers and Chaney meets Warren at Warren in other Friday night battles. The Chaney-Salem game is the high spot on the Saturday night menu.

With the holiday vacation ended, basketball quintets of the Tri-County high school league are preparing this week for important clashes. Three league battles head the nine-game card scheduled Friday and Saturday nights.

The undefeated Louisville five will play host to Columbiana, while East Palestine will make its initial league start of the campaign by tackling Boardman on the home court Friday night. In the other league clash Minerva, defending champs of the circuit, will entertain East Palestine Saturday evening.

Minerva was undefeated in league play a year ago.

Tackle Old Rivals

Both Louisville and Minerva will invade the fair of old rivals for non-league battles. Minerva will be at Salmville Friday night while Louisville will trek to Navarre. Lisbon will play host to Wellsville Friday night in a Columbiana county series fray while on the following night the county seat lads will invade Dalton.

Other games slated for Saturday night find Leontonia at Lowellville and Sebring invading Atwater. Louisville is expected to run its winning streak to six games with victories over both Columbiana and Navarre. Columbiana has broken even in its league games, winning from Leontonia and losing to Boardman. Navarre ranks twelfth in the standings of the Stark county Class B loop with one victory in five starts.

Boardman vs. Palestine

The real battle of the week looms between Boardman and East Palestine and the outcome of this game will have a lot of bearing on the league race. These two clubs and Louisville are the favorites to cop the 1933-34 championship. Boardman is tied with Louisville for the league leadership and has already stopped Leontonia and Columbiana. East Palestine is expected to win over Minerva Saturday. Last year,

Thought of Another Cut Doesn't Stop Babe From Being Anxious to Play Ball

In Fact, Ruth's All Enthusiased Over Coming Year and Wants to Play 100 Games For Yankees

BY ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Take another salary cut this year? Sure. Play another full season? Not quite. But at least 100 games. Pitch again? Not if he can avoid it. Quit baseball? Never as long as there's a job and money in it.

Babe Ruth is quite willing to discuss these and other matters of personal and public interest as he makes his plans for the new year and his twenty-first season in the American league. Scoring 235, he says he is in better shape than last spring but knows his playing days are mostly behind him. The idea that he must soon leave the active playing list no longer worries him.

Far from being alarmed over the prospect of further downward trimming of his salary, which slid from $75,000 to $52,000 last year, he anticipates another reduction, so long as it is "a reasonable cut and not a major operation."

Would $35,000 or $40,000 be acceptable? He'd rather not say until he has heard from "Jake"—Colonel Ruppert, the owner of the Yankees.

Behind all this outward non-chalance about the future, lies the idea that Babe Ruth will manage the Yankees.

It's easy to build a supposition on this evidence, that Ruth has been conditionally promised the management of the Yankees in a year or two, at the most; that, in fact, the offer of the Newark job was made on the basis of fitting himself for the headquarters assignment. Whether his rejection of this offer affects his future chances of succeeding Joe McCarthy as Yankee manager, only the Babe and the colonel can say.

McCarthy's present contract has two more years to run, so that unless he resigned or consented to being bought off, the Babe could not realize his aim to pilot the club until 1936.

Meanwhile Ruth is not only independently fixed, financially, but is assured of income this year from outside sources more than sufficient to make up for any decrease in his Yankee salary. Under such circumstances, he intimates, why do any worrying now?

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 4.—Nebraska soon may be the only university in the United States with a metric system track as a result of the CWA program.

Henry F. Schute, one of the nation's leading coaches and head man on the Nebraska cinderpath, today announced the Memorial stadium track here is being shortened so the circuit of the oval will be 400 meters instead of 440.

Wittenberg, John Carroll Also Triumph In Cage Contests

(By Associated Press)

Their basketball lineups liberally studded with football stars, Ohio State defeated Princeton at Columbus Wednesday night 41 to 34 before a crowd of 3,840.

Fairman and McMillen, two Tiger gridgers, and Padlow, Rosequist and Conrad, who sported the Scarlet and Gray last fall, stood out in the play, though Colburn, recently reinstated Buckeye forward, had high scoring honors, registering 17 points.

Wittenberg Wins

Wittenberg college, which last Monday night defeated Princeton breezed through to its second victory at Springfield in a 32 to 23 win over Denison university, setting a pace the Granville victory were unable to match.

Ward Powell, a sophomore, tossed in eight goals from the floor and four free throws to sparkle in Baldwin-Wallace's 34-21 triumph over John Carroll at Cleveland.

At Coshocton, the barnstorming Bobcats of Ohio university caught a tartar in the Coshocton Independents whipped the other boys 36-22.

Princeton met Ohio State without the advantage of Carl Larsen, the veteran center from Columbus, but Seibert, a lanky center, showed well against Rosequist.

Games Tonight

In games tonight, Marietta meets Fenn at Cleveland and Earlham's team comes over from Indiana to play St. John's at Toledo.

Otterbein stock took a fall with Friday's game at Akron in prospect. Carl Worstell, of Bloomdale, the 6 foot 6 inches of center went to bed with the gripper. Replacing him will be Raymond Snively, a sophomore from Massillon, who is only 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Boardman, Sebring Stars In Battle For League Title

Leigh Kennedy, Boardman High forward and Franklin Fowler, Sebring guard continued their duel for the individual scoring honors of the Tri-County high school league.

Kennedy has scored 17 field goals and four free throws for a total of 38 points in four games. Fowler, participating in one more contest has registered 16 action goals and five charity tosses for a total of 37 points.

Scoring seven points in a game against the Alumni, James Peters of Louisville moved into a tie with Ralph Vanaman of Lisbon for third place. The lads have scored 29 points apiece.

The scoring race still remains an open affair since there are many other players within striking distance of the leaders. High scoring marks were at a premium last week in the few games staged. Lehman, Columbiana forward, scoring ten points in a game against the Alumni accounted for the highest single game mark of the week.

Those scoring 13 or more points follow:

Player	Ga.	Go.	F.	Pt.

Fowler, Sebring	5	16	5	37
Peters, Louisville	4	12	5	29

The Buckeye conference championship is the goal of these senior members of Ohio Wesleyan's basketball team, which plays its first Buckeye opponent of the season next Tuesday night, Jan. 9, when Ohio university's co-champion Bobcats travel to Delaware to meet the Bishops.

Clarence Hendricks, Findlay, ace center of the Bishops, was the state's leading scorer two years ago when he was a sophomore. He made all-Buckeye that season.

Bob Kolb, Columbus, is a forward who has pulled several games out of the fire in the past few years. He has a keen eye for the basket and is perhaps the best floor man on the squad.

For two seasons the Ohio Wesleyan team has been handicapped by the lack of a capable substitute in case Hendricks was forced to leave the game on fouls or injury, but this season Coach Ray Detrick has Harry Youtt, Bellmore, N. Y., who has been trying to make the team since his sophomore year.

Golfers Collide In Open Tourney On Coast Course

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—One hundred twenty-eight golfers will tie off Saturday in the first round of the Los Angeles $5,000 open tournament, the third of the winter season in the California.

Ninety of these qualified out of a field of 165 starters yesterday over three courses. Thirty-eight were placed on an exempted list because of their performances in the 1933 tournament, the national open and national P. G. A. championship.

Bill Mehlhorn, Louisville, Ky.; John Geertsen, Salt Lake City; Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., and Stanley Kertes, Los Angeles, were the leaders in the 33-holes of qualifying play, shooting 142, even par.

While all the outstanding performers qualified, Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., ran into difficulties which almost cut him from the list. He finished with an 81-73-154, two strokes to the good.

Kertes had the finest 18-hole card, shooting a 63 on the afternoon eighteen.

Eighteen holes will be played Saturday, 18 Sunday and 36 Monday when the field will be cut to 60 low scorers and ties.

Winning Golf Title Goal of Didrickson

(By International News Service)

DENVER, Jan. 4.—Babe Didrickson, the all-America girl athlete, has an ambition to become a real golf champion.

"I want to become woman champion in golf," Babe related in a radio interview here.

She declared, amongst other things, that she had not yet reached her peak in athletic performance, despite her wins in three Olympic events.

The Texas girl said she was the recipient of innumerable challenges from women—from throwing a baseball to wrestling.

She is on a western tour with a basketball team, which met defeat here, 29-25, at the hands of a quintet headed by "Dutch" Clark, all-America football back.

Battling Infantile Paralysis

Following the same lines as Pasteur in his conquest of hydrophobia, Dr. H. Park (left), director of the New York Department of Health, and Dr. Maurice Brodie, of New York University, are on the track of a serum that promises banishing of infantile paralysis. While cautioning against undue optimism, Park said he had succeeded in immunizing monkeys for varying periods against the dread disease.

ELYRIAN HEADS RUM ENFORCERS

E. G. Mathews and Force Of 60 Will Round Up Bootleggers

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Enforcement of Ohio's many-angled liquor laws was in the hands today of E. G. Mathews of Elyria who lost his post as state prohibition commissioner with the advent of repeal. Mathews will head a force of 60 or more inspectors in rounding up bootleggers and permit law violators. Director John A. Hughes of the state liquor control board said.

Recommended By White

He announced Mathews' appointment after a conference with Governor White in which the board participated. Mathews had been recommended as chief of the enforcement unit by the governor. Meantime, enforcement of the state's provisions for proper labeling of whisky and other spirituous liquors continued at the behest of Earl H. Hanefeld, state director of agriculture. State pure food and drugs acts are administered by the agriculture department.

Hanefeld told Dr. James M. Doran, head of the distilled spirits institute, here yesterday that "the inspectors in the division of foods and dairies are under orders to continue to make buys of alleged whisky and forward it to their home office. This will in turn be analyzed and where violations of the law are found, prosecutions will be instituted."

"It is not in my province to change the existing laws," he commented.

Dr. Doran had suggested the act be applied only to medicinal whisky, allowing distillers to sell blended whisky which did not meet U. S. pharmaceutical standards.

Price Would Be High

Previously Dr. Doran had informed the liquor control board that "state stores in Ohio will have a tough time operating if they require whisky to be aged four years." He said such whisky could not be marketed at prices Ohioans were able to pay.

Chairman Edward T. Dixon announced he was willing to forego the four year requirement if labeling would increase the cost of whisky. "I am willing to go along with the federal regulations without setting up extra requirements for Ohio," Dixon declared.

The board decided that in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Akron, Youngstown, Canton, Lima and Steubenville boards of elections will handle permit applications. In all other counties, county auditors will handle the blanks, in addition to the board's Columbus office.

Governor White revealed that though a personnel of 1,000 may be needed to handle state monopoly, managements of state liquor stores will be filled without regard to civil service.

Mathews' salary as chief of the enforcement unit has not been fixed but is expected to be about $5,000 annually.

10 to 50 Age Range For Sterilization

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Ten-year-old children and women as old as 50—men even older than that—are within the age range of Germany's new sterilization program, it was revealed today by Dr. Arthur Guett, eugenics expert in the ministry of the interior.

Dr. Guett said that when the present "waiting list" of incurables are disposed of, the work of the eugenics courts, set up under the national sterilization law which became effective January 1, would be confined mostly to children coming out of school.

Only "urgent" cases will be dealt with in the near future. He said the 260,000 incurable inmates of Germany's public institutions would not be sterilized; only those who are "at large."

Jungle Fighting Awaits Truce End

(By Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 4.—The forces of war watched the hourglass today in the jungle fighting area of the Chaco Boreal and waited for the new zero hour ending the Bolivian-Paraguayan truce—midnight Saturday.

Forces of peace, represented by the League of Nations' Chaco commission were in Asuncion, striving for Paraguayan consent to a plan enabling further prolongation of the armistice.

Paraguayan and Bolivian representatives and members of the league commission who did not go to Asuncion came here from Montevideo to hasten extension of the agreement if the Paraguayan brand is successful.

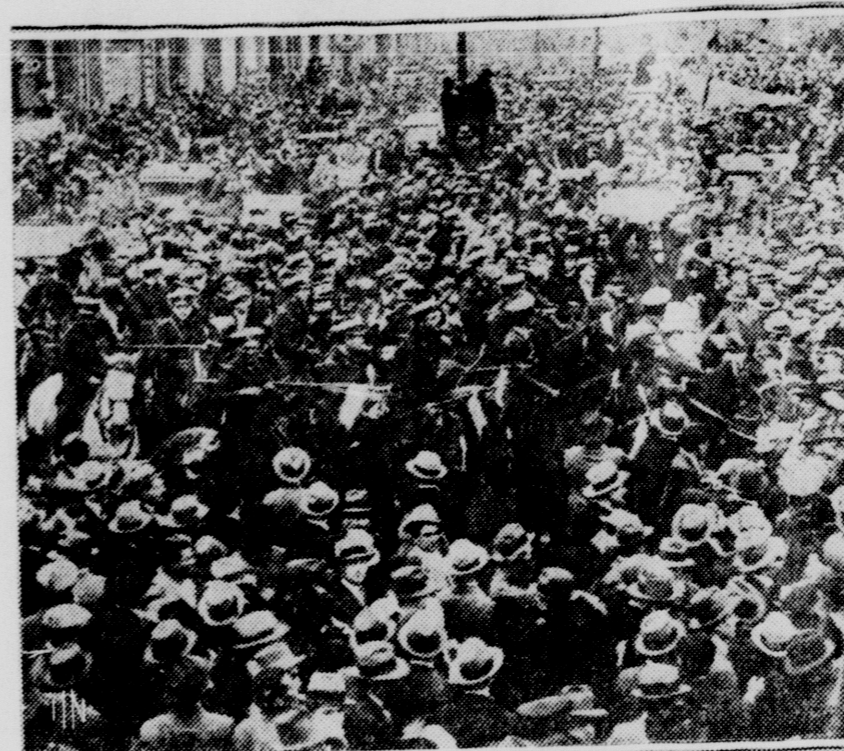

Sources close to the belligerents, however, showed growing apprehension that renewal of fighting was unavoidable. The obstacle to the present conversations apparently is the old question of what portion of the Chaco is arbitrable if the combatants take the controversy to the world court at the Hague.

Paraguay is authoritatively represented as unwilling under any circumstances to allow arbitration of the territory allotted to it in the Hayes award of 1879, which Bolivia has not accepted—roughly a portion below the 23rd parallel, of which the River Verde is the northern boundary.

Finance Committee Calls Morgenthau

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Hearings of the senate finance committee today for examination preparatory to speeding through the senate nomination as secretary of the treasury.

Senator Huey Long (D., La.) served notice meanwhile he would protest any "railroading" of the appointment through.

The calling of Morgenthau established a precedent. His nomination has yet to be formally submitted, but Chairman Harrison said it was essential to get the New York lawyer into his momentous position as quickly as possible.

Harrison and other leaders expressed confidence the nomination would be confirmed "without a trouble."

Long, who will be permitted to question Morgenthau, indicated he would inquire into complaints made to him by "two constituents."

"I am willing to judge him strictly on his record up to this time," he said. "I don't want the man to make the same mistake as Woodin and Acheson both past a disaster."

William H. Woodin recently resigned as secretary because of ill health. Dean Acheson formerly was undersecretary.

SHOWS RECEIPTS ON BARREL BEER

State Auditor Tracy Reveals $1,302,230 As Income

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Ohio's barrel beer tax has produced $1,302,230.47 revenue, the annual report of State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy disclosed today. The report also showed an operating funds balance of $3,804,232.19, which carried the state government comfortably out of the "red."

The beer revenue only started coming in last April 7, after the legalization of beer.

Receipts from other sources noted in the auditor's statement covering 1933, included: Cigarette stamps, $4,475,283.83; liquid fuel, $2,988,872.42 for public schools; federal aid to schools, $520,475.81; diversion aid, $2,030,000.00; beverage bottle tax, $368,967.47; malt tax, $71,557.20; cosmetics tax, $502,060.17; and admission tax, $897,901.83.

Still another source of revenue was that from the racing commission, which turned $104,139.80 into the state coffers and spent $18,549.99 of that amount for administration.

The volume of business transacted by the state during the year was shown by receipts of $101,569,375.03 and disbursements totaling $91,846,845.61. These figures include the trust funds that go into the keeping of the state treasury.

Receipts for highway construction were: Gas, $8,314,915.57; federal aid, $5,581,649.92; and refunds and reimbursements from counties, $301,431.93; total, $14,197,996.77.

Receipts for highway maintenance and repair total $12,182,895.24 and expenditures from highway funds for both construction and maintenance totaled $21,098,301.58. This was $16,000,000 less than in 1932.

The general revenue fund was left with a balance of $737,283.10.

Budget Message Highlights

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Pertinent quotations from President Roosevelt's budget message to congress:

"Powerful forces for recovery exist."

"It is by laying a foundation of confidence in the present and faith in the future that the upturn which we have so far seen will become cumulative."

"The cornerstone of this foundation is the credit of the government."

"If we maintain the course I have outlined, we can confidently look forward to cumulative beneficial forces, represented by increased volume of business, more general profit, greater employment, a diminution of relief expenditures, larger governmental receipts and repayments, and greater human happiness."

"The excess of expenditures over receipts this fiscal year amounts to over seven billion dollars."

"My estimates for the coming fiscal year show an excess of expenditures over receipts of two billion dollars."

"We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the national debt."

"The total debt, if increased by the sum of two billion dollars during the fiscal year, 1935, would amount to approximately $31,834,000,000 on June 30, 1935."

"It is my belief that so far as we can make estimates with our present knowledge, the government should seek to hold the total debt within this amount."

"It is clear that the necessity for relief and recovery will still be with us during the year 1934-35."

"In the next six months we shall have to borrow approximately six billion dollars of new money and in addition four billion dollars to meet maturities of a like amount."

Davies, Crosby In Friday's Film: "Chance At Heaven" Plays Tonight

A new team, one that promises to be a most delightful one, will be seen in the very late production, "Going Hollywood" which will play at the State Friday and Saturday. It stars Marion Davies and Bing Crosby.

Marion As Chorus Girl

The film, a musical, marks the return of the blond, charming comedienne, Miss Davies, who has not been seen since her very successful "Peg O' My Heart." She will certainly be at home in the role of Sylvia Bruce, chorus girl, for she was a Legfield performer before she became a screen star—and her dancing is said to be exceptionally good.

The picture, an original story from the witty pen of Donald Ogden Stewart, is a key-hole view of the real Hollywood, yet one spiced with catchy song hits and dance ensembles, which make it entertaining screen material.

Six melodies have been created for the film by the team of Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, authors of "Wedding Of The Painted Doll" and "The Old Woman In The Shoe."

Their new numbers are "Our Big Love Scene," "Going Hollywood," "We'll Make Hay While The Sun Shines," "Temptation," "Cinderella's Fella" and "After Sundown."

Good Cast, Too

Crosby plays a role that is very much like his own life—that of Bill Williams, crooner. With these two are Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly (the clever comedienne who played opposite Thelma Todd in a short at the State not so long ago) and Bobby Watson.

Briefly, the story deals with a lonely girl in love with a crooner's voice, who trails him to Hollywood where he is to make his first picture. After much difficulty with a temperamental French actress, who likewise loves the crooner, she becomes a star in her own right.

Tonight's Feature

"CHANCE AT HEAVEN", with Joel McCrea, Ginger Rogers and Marian Nixon in leading roles, plays the State this evening. It is a light and entertaining tale about the lives and loves of three young people, each of different personalities and make-up. The boy and girl are very much in love in their small town until the city girl happens along to make the boy see otherwise.

It's interesting to note that Miss Nixon, always cast as a very sweet, unsophisticated lassie is this time seen as "Gloria Franklin," rich and rather haughty, while Ginger Rogers, cracks the good sport, "Marjorie Harris," who just steps out of the picture until the boy, "Blacky Gorman," realizes it is she he loves after all.

STATE OF THE NATION

The country has learned what to expect from presidential messages on the state of the nation. With the passage of time the messages have taken on more of the aspect of program summaries and less of the aspect of factual accounts.

President Roosevelt's message, delivered to a cheering congress Wednesday afternoon, was in this tradition—a recital of the general direction and broad purposes of the administration. The President struck the chord of its import in this introduction: "I come before you at the opening of the regular session of the 73rd congress, not to make requests for special or detailed items of legislation; I come rather to counsel with you, who, like myself, have been selected to carry out a mandate of the whole people, in order that without partisanship you and I may cooperate to continue the restoration of our national well-being and, equally important, to build on the ruins of the past a new structure designed better to meet the problems of modern civilization."

It was an admirable introduction, so complete in its scope that the text which followed could have been supplied by any American familiar with the purposes of the Roosevelt administration. "We have ploughed the furrow and planted good seed," President Roosevelt stated in conclusion. "This hard beginning is over. If we would reap the full harvest we must cultivate the soil where this good seed is sprouting and the plant is reaching up to mature growth." Mr. Roosevelt could not have said more plainly that most of the remedies authorized to meet an emergency are to be embodied in permanent legislation. It was the most direct statement in his message.

Many of his countrymen would like to hear equally definite answers to other questions which have arisen under the new deal. They would like to know without equivocation the limits of the inflationary course upon which their government has embarked with its policy of free spending and dollar cheapening. They would like to hear their President's opinion on how far the government's credit can be stretched before it cracks under the strain. They would like to know what he sees in store for wage earners under a program which increases their cost of living in terms of cheapened dollars, but does not increase their wages in direct proportion.

Because they continue to have a deep and abiding faith in the intellectual integrity of the President, they will not press him for answers so long as he continues able to convince them that he is making progress toward overcoming those forces which have threatened their welfare. It is as though he had said simply to his countrymen: "The state of the nation continues to improve and I am confident that with your cooperation my administration can win through to success." He is assured of a continuing vote of confidence.

CITY IN DISTRESS
The plight of Los Angeles as the result of a cloudburst on New Year's day elicits national sympathy. In a region where climate either is very good or very bad, the tragic events of the latter extreme are heightened in contrast.

The total of known dead is mounting steadily toward half a hundred as Los Angeles county, one of the most densely populated regions on earth, digs its way through the storm's debris. Side by side with the specter of death stalks the threat of disease from a polluted water supply.

Fortunately, California is learning to take its climatic upsets with better grace than it seemed able to muster under the influence of real estate boomers in the late era of everlasting sunshine guaranteed. The rest of the country, too, is beginning to stifle its disposition to compare ridiculous claims of perfection with occasionally tragic outbursts of natural fury. It rains, even in Los Angeles, and it can rain very hard and very disastrously.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—For established folk there is something exciting about those spanking new towns constantly mushrooming up, overflows from New York, and linking village to village in far-flung network. The houses are so fresh they have not yet lost an air of intrusion.

Many are so remote the streets are shut out with rich country mud and are still waiting for their lights. Occupants are mostly new-comers. He has a clerkship and she may not give up her stenography until the piano is paid for.

Occasionally there is a sign "To Be Sold at Auction," indicating some young hopefuls did not make the grade. She has come back to mother until they could try again. But in most instances through the blue and pink curtained windows everything looks bright, cosy, and intimate.

Now and then there's the music of a pale voice or the tiny cry of a baby. Always the feeling domesticity is new and experimental. The becoming arrogance of young hussies running up life's ladder whistling! Yet withal a humility rarely found among the more seasoned.

New York's department store vanguard is not appreciated save in a chance discovery. For instance, I inquired in one irritable Herald Square for the bird department. Then stepped from the elevator into the midst of an aviary larger than those in most zoos. More than 5,000 canaries, 2,000 pairs of love birds, 1,000 parrots, 400 cockatoos and so on. Such departments have braces of ornithologists with whom the purchaser may confer. It's estimated there are 70,000 canaries in the metropolitan area.

No other dramatic critic has been so widely reviled yet so widely read as George Jean Nathan. Scarcely a producer or player has not at some time been singled by his scorn. Round robins have been sent to editors to fire him and his mail has been thrashed with threats. Yet in all his bombastic career Nathan has never been molested in personal encounter. Perhaps his look of innocence saves him. Handsome in an almost collegiate way, although in early 30's, he appears as naive as a plow-boy.

Self exiles limping in from Paris on account of the dizzy dollar declare the past few weeks have restored a lost appreciation of American trade, especially in Paris. Hotels and shops show a deference not evident in years. Even sullen concierges in pensions occupied by Americans are abandoning petty prying and sou pinching. But it comes rather late!

With Carol Stone, 17, having made her stage debut, the entire family of Fred Stone will have had a footlight career. While he never expressed himself authoritatively on the subject, it was always Stone's fervent hope each of his children would follow footsteps of their parents. Carol is red-haired and floaty with eager buoyancy. The other

Manila Bay to Auction Block

Twenty dollars, seems to be one answer to the old question "What price glory?" if the example here can be taken as a standard. The United States flag that flew from the masthead of the U. S. S. After California's Disastrous Rainstorm daughters are Dorothy and Paula. No official announcement has been made, but it is quite possible next season will see the entire Stone family under one billing.

These pictures attest to the severity of the rainstorm that deluged Southern California, taking a terrific toll in lives and property. Top, a street scene in Los Angeles, where canoes turned out to be the most suitable means of transportation. Left, a section of highway demolished by the downpour, and, right, an automobile which was one of the many washed away and almost completely buried, being dug out.

Again Broadway lights pulsate like an enormous fire-fly. For a time the whirling pyrotechnics were puttering. Building top space was abandoned. Some rent for $60,000 a year. Four signs were returned in one week.

Thingumabobs: Jose Iturbe, pianist, phones his 16-year-old daughter Maria after each concert, wherever he is. . . . George Werts, magazine writer, is prospecting for gold in Nevada. . . . Herbert Pulitzer smokes perfumed cigarettes. . . . In Spain they fear that when Sidney Franklin became a bull-fighter Brooklyn lost a good butler. . . . But Franklin draws American crowds. . . . Carolyn Wells is reputed to have the best memory among current writers. . . . Walter Huston started out as a song and dance man. . . . "The Park Avenue" still inspects patrons through a speak-easy peephole.

A macabre sense of humor, perhaps. But all day I've been giggling at a ruckus in a rowdy Broadway restaurant last night. One suddenly slapped, ha, ha, him in the face, ho, ho, with a goosey minute squeal and — I can't go on — he sat there with onions hanging from his chin and ears dripping, ha, ha, gray and. . . .

The Stars Say:

For Friday, January 5
The planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of today may be expected to greatly accelerate conditions of a business nature, particularly those pursuits pertaining to publishing, writings, promotion and publicity. There may also be increase or stabilization of values in real estate, mining or agriculture. But employment has some perilous aspects and an abrupt change or journey may not prove advantageous. Shun speculation and extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a progressive year if engaged in literary work, advertising, promotion, or if possessed of real property, agricultural lands or mining shares. But employment calls for safeguarding and changes, removals or journeys should be made only after wise deliberation.

A child born on this day should be adaptable, talented and responsible although seeming restless and unsettled.

Chronic Cough Doesn't Mean Bronchitis

Recently I pointed out to you the significance of a chronic cough. As I told you a long continued cough may be a symptom of chronic bronchitis, or some other disturbance of the lung. Today I want to tell you about another condition that is characterized by a persistent and annoying cough. The affliction I refer to is not bronchitis, but it is given by the doctors a long name, "bronchiectasis."

Bronchiectasis is often confused with bronchitis. In both afflictions there is a persistent cough. In bronchiectasis the cough is more spasmodic and the sufferer brings up large quantities of a thick, foul material. As with bronchitis, pain is usually absent and the only discomfort is the never ending coughing.

A Common Affliction
Bronchiectasis, as its name implies, is a stretching of the bronchial tubes. The tubes become dilated as a result of increased pressure within them and a weakness of their walls. The disease is much more common than you might suspect. It is especially common among workers who are exposed to irritating vapors and dusts. Prolonged exposure to certain irritating dusts leads to chronic irritation, inflammation and ultimately to weakness of the walls of the bronchial tubes. Though bronchiectasis is more frequently met in adults, it may occur at any age. It may be found in children and young adults. In such cases it is usually traced to repeated attacks of colds, to undernourishment or to some severe ailment of childhood.

It is interesting to learn that in adults the disease may be characterized by "clubbing" of the fingers. The fingers become broad and spade-like in shape. In other cases the hands and feet become markedly enlarged. These signs, plus the typical cough, should arouse suspicion that the trouble is bronchiectasis.

The disease is not easily recog-

He is completing plans to prosecute more than 600 of Senator Long's election commissioners on fraud charges.

nized. On this account it is sometimes neglected for years. Fortunately, the diagnosis can be confirmed by an X-ray examination of the lungs, which shows the stretched and diseased bronchial tubes.

Neglect Is Dangerous

As I said, persistent and severe cases of bronchitis are often confused with bronchiectasis. But it should always be borne in mind that if bronchitis is not given the proper attention it may lead to bronchiectasis. Neglect of either ailment results in a serious handicap to normal health and growth. When permitted to go on for years either disease is more difficult to overcome and often times cure is impossible.

Cure can only be expected when the necessary precautions are taken. All irritating dusts and vapors must be avoided. Change of occupation and climate may be essential. In all cases, it is important to remove all localized points of infection, such as diseased teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses and adenoids. The general health must be improved and the necessary steps taken to build up resistance of the body against colds and other infections of the breathing apparatus. An abundance of fresh air, sunlight, hours of sleep and rest, as well as nourishing food, must not be overlooked in the care of this annoying affliction.

CHAPTER FORTY

It was evening now. She and Julian would be leaving soon. The group that had gathered for cocktails on the veranda was urging them to change their plans and stay.

"I had counted on bridge this evening," Mrs. Tracy was saying. "Are you determined to leave, Julian?"

"Ask Patricia," he said briefly.

Mrs. Tracy turned to Patricia. She shook her head. Nothing could make her stay an unnecessary moment, nothing, not even Clark.

"What you go?" he asked pleadingly at her elbow. "Won't morning do just as well?"

"No," she said. "Please don't say so."

"Aren't you having a good time, Patricia?"

"You have seemed so happy today."

"I'm tired, that's all. I didn't sleep very well last night."

"What a shame," broke in Marthe. "I've been thinking that you were present. I slept like a baby myself."

She looked reflectively at Julian. He looked at her. Deep within, Patricia felt herself begin to tremble. No one suspected. Marthe would say that Marthe could cheat and she could have Clark and Julian too. Patricia could not stop.

She could say nothing to Clark. Her hands were tied by her own sense of fair play, her own sense of her own feeling for human decency. But she could speak to Julian. On their way back to town, she said.

"I went for a walk last night," she began deliberately. "I couldn't sleep so I went for a walk on the beach."

"Oh," was Julian's only comment. When Patricia failed to amplify her statement he ventured to say, "Well, what about your walk on the beach?"

"You know what about it," she smiled him levelly.

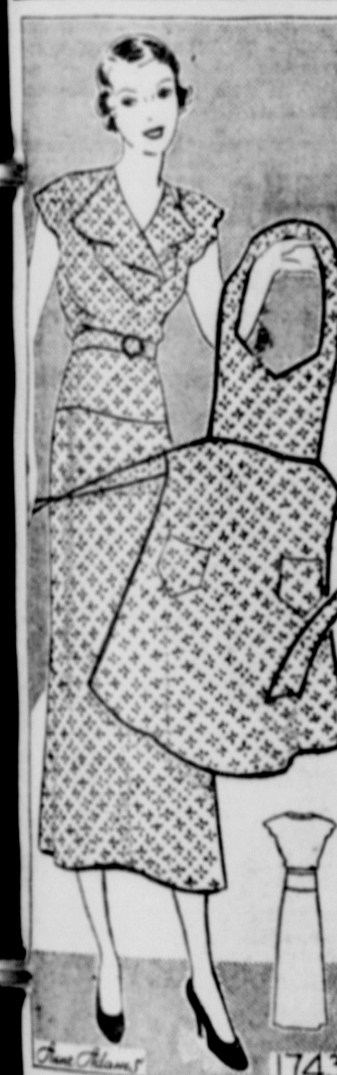

"I'm afraid that I don't."

"Very well then," said Patricia in a rush. "I didn't mean to but I am you and Marthe."

She had got it out. Her heart was pounding. Her face was crimson. She was completely undisturbed. He smiled in quiet amusement.

"It was a nice night for a walk," he admitted casually. "Marthe and

Navy Birds Poised For Mass Flight to Hawaii

With the Naval Base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as its goal, VP Squadron Ten, of the U. S. Naval Air Force, will leave San Diego, Calif., on January 12, and after a brief halt at San Francisco, will head over the Pacific on the longest non-stop flight ever attempted in mass formation. The six seaplanes to be used in the flight are the same that flew from Norfolk, Va., to Canal Zone last September and later flew from Panama to San Diego. Lt. Commander Kneifer McGinnis will command the squadron on the 2,150-mile flight. He is shown at left in group with his five plane commanders, Lieuts. H. J. McRoberts, F. A. Davis, T. D. Guinn, J. Perry and J. L. Averill. The purpose of the flight is to transfer the squadron from San Diego to Hawaii.

ROME DEBATES NAVAL BUDGET

Officials Warn "Other Nations Already Preparing"

ROME, Jan. 4. While Premier Mussolini and British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon prepared today to converse on the world disarmament statute, the chamber of deputies considered a navy budget report which declared that only a four-power pact can save the world from a naval armaments race of the worst kind.

The report, signed by Marquis Giacomo Medici del Vascello, committee reporter, and accepted as a statement of the Duce's own viewpoint, warned that the principal world powers "are already arming at sea."

Would Relieve Tension

If the big European nations were to get together on some step looking toward disarmament, world tension would be relieved, and the way opened for a broader agreement on arms—including naval as well as land and air—Vascello said.

Citing particularly the naval building programs of America, England and Japan, the report placed blame for the heavy armament of Japan's navy on her "world mission."

This mission, Vascello declared in the report, threatens a race war.

"Japan today invades China," he said. "Inspired by race hatred, she will plan tomorrow against white men."

Then, referring to Japan's naval activities, he added, "The ground work for this future danger from the east is perhaps being laid."

Revealed By Japan

"It was revealed in Japan's recent policies and diplomacy, including her withdrawal from the league of nations. This gesture is of great importance and is highly significant and menacing."

The reporter did not ask greater naval appropriations for Italy, contenting himself with an appeal for a disarmament agreement.

Vascello said the Italian naval budget of 98,731,000 lire (about $7,898,482) for 1934-1935 is 14,552,500 lire ($1,062,860) under that for the current year.

Old-Time Family Doctor Due For Comeback, Dean Says

BY LARRY GREEN, Associated Press Staff Writer

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—The family doctor, who treated about 90 per cent of the ailments of his patients, is due for a comeback, medical men say.

"The people themselves," in the opinion of Dr. J. H. J. Upham, dean of the Ohio State university medical college, "were largely responsible for the spread of specialization among physicians," but he believes there now is a growing demand for the general practitioner—the family doctor who makes his rounds, treating those at home who are unable to visit his office.

"Numerous factors combined to encourage specialization," said Dean Upham, "among them, the automobile, good roads, rapid transit systems and the consequent saving in time of travel."

Became City-Conscious

"These things brought the city, with its many specialists, closer to the rural community. The country thus tended to become city-conscious. The public turned more and more to the city doctor with his x-ray and other gadgets for speedy and definite diagnosis. It was thus that the people themselves became largely responsible for the spread of specialization."

At Ohio State, and other medical schools, Dean Upham declared, instructors and advisors are urging medical students to postpone their decisions to specialize until they have engaged in general practice for at least a few years—"for, after all," he asserted, the numerous ailments that afflict the human being are more or less related. Bad teeth may cause stomach trouble, infected tonsils are responsible for a number of ills, and so on down the line.

"We encourage the student to study the medical profession in its broader general scope. To be physicians first—specialists later if they are so inclined. We encourage them to consider the patient and his pocketbook by exhausting the simpler means of diagnosis before resorting to the more expensive agencies of establishing the nature of ailments."

Want Cooperation

"Mind you," he continued, "we are not asking that the general practitioner turn a cold shoulder upon the specialists in his profession. The opposite is true. We want a spirit of cooperation between the specialist

Locks Himself In New Liquor Store

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The hardest work of the staff in one of Pennsylvania's new state liquor stores was to go home. There were locks aplenty, and bolts, too—and all worked from the inside.

After an hour of investigation and conferences, the manager and clerks locked the door of the former bank building and slipped out of the rear, leaving a policeman to keep an all-night vigil.

Americans Remain In Danger Zones

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 4.—Many Americans, especially missionaries, persisted today in remaining at their statics in revolt-torn Fukien province despite repeated warnings to evacuate.

The Nationalist government at Nanking urged all foreign powers to withdraw their nationals from danger zones in the province.

Officers of the United States consulate today had succeeded in moving most of the 154 Americans living in and near Foochow to Nantai island, in the South Min river, but many living outside Foochow, and Amoy refused to seek safety even in the foreign quarters of the two cities.

Marshall in answer to the $10,000 damage suit of Mrs. Leah Monreal, who was struck by his automobile. Senator Marshall declared the woman was injured because of her own carelessness and negligence.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

MEN say "the old year dies, the new year is born."

But no old year dies, no new year is born. There is no beginning or ending to the year or to time.

We small creatures are born, and we die, and for our convenience and reckoning we chop time up into little sections of 12 months, conveniently selecting as our unit the 365 days that the earth needs to travel around the sun.

Having sliced up time, each hopes that he will have 50 slices, perhaps a few more. We say, foolishly, "time passes." More wisely it has been said that time remains as it is, and we go, a solemn old Roman, and we open his wrist veins and die in a war bath because Nero ordered it, said: "We are always complaining that our days are few, and acting as though there would be no end to them."

That is what a majority of us did in 1933, and will continue doing through 1934; and so on until Time himself comes to say, "Time is up."

OUR prohibition era which was to make "our young people forget what liquor tastes like," empty the prisons and insane asylums, cut down hospital attendance, etc., seems to have left many ladies of this nation, including some very young ones, surprisingly familiar with "the taste of alcohol."

In Chicago it is even difficult to persuade ladies that the saloon is a net for them. Mayor Kelly says, "Womanhood should be held on a higher plane," meaning higher than the brass rail that runs in front of the saloon bar.

The mayor says woman drinking at a bar side by side with men is "entirely outside of woman's normal sphere."

Even the callous will say "amen" to that.

THE fact that you can get a divorce for mental cruelty makes that kind of cruelty important, and Mrs. Irene Peters calls the judge's attention to something in a cruel mental way that seems to be convincing.

"My husband would give the dog a seat at the bridge table. Then he'd remark that the dog didn't play very well, but did better than I."

CONSTANTLY, new, useful work is found for airplanes. The Humane society of Missouri sets a good example, scattering from a sky whet, kaffir corn and ground corn in St. Louis county to feed hungry birds.

Planes are used to reforest burnt-over ground, scattering seeds of trees. Vast acres are mapped accurately, easily in inaccessible mountainous territory. Aviators provide reliable estimates of timber "waste" detect in the air, which cannot be done from the ground.

"Some" that may yield oil and also spray out forest fires.

Before long it is to be hoped that scientists will find a way of fighting fires from the air by "laying down" through the air a smothering blanket of some fire extinguishing substance. It can be imagined, therefore it can be done.

It seems silly that men, able to fly, should fight forest fires on foot, with axes and shovels.

Six More Victims Counted In Flood

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—Six more victims were added to a growing list of dead in the Southern California flood of New Year's day as searchers prodded grimly through piles of debris today, bringing the death toll to 42.

Official reports listed 72 other persons as missing and fear grew that many of them might be dead. The final toll may not be known for months.

P. P. Pedderson, assistant construction engineer of the county road department, said it would take three months to remove debris and wreckage in the Montrose area, where the greatest damage occurred and two months to clear one of the principal streets, Rosemont.

Scenes that gripped even men accustomed to the horrors of widespread tragedy were unfolded as 1,000 men began the work of reconstruction. The crushed body of a little girl was retrieved from one pile of debris before the eyes of Gov. James Ralph, Jr. who surveyed the stricken districts. Tears came to the eyes of the chief executive.

Wanted a Boy, So He Just Took One

(By Associated Press)

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 4.—A father's desire to have a boy to take the place of his own son, who died in a motor car accident, was given today as the reason why 11-year-old Bobby Walsh was taken from an orphanage.

"I wanted a boy and just went out and got him," the police quoted George W. McDonald, 37, of Omaha as saying after he and the boy had been found in a rooming house after an extensive search which began with Bobby's disappearance from the orphanage last Tuesday. Bobby was returned to the orphanage, a home the worse for his experience.

A tip from Robert Barrett that he had seen a "nervous man" and a boy resembling Bobby in the rooming house brought about McDonald's apprehension.

McDonald told police that his wife was dead and that his own son had been killed and seven years ago.

"I must have been crazy," he said. "He was penniless when found, but said that he had intended to get a job and take care of the boy."

Believe Massillon Woman Still Alive

(By Associated Press)

MASSILLON, Jan. 4.—Authorities today were convinced Mrs. Edith Christman, hunted in connection with the slaying of her husband and sister-in-law, is still alive. They abandoned a previous suicide theory and moved to protect relatives of the slain pair.

A guard was thrown about the home of Melvin Christman, brother of Roy, 43, and Iva, 33, who were shot fatally at their farm home near New Year's day. The mother, Mrs. E. Christman, is staying at Melvin's home.

A tip from a friend of the family, after the discovery of a hideout in a cornfield which officers said the woman had used during the initial part of the hunt for her.

Desire To Adopt Boy In Poison Case

MALVERN, Ark., Jan. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Thompson would like to have four-year-old blue-eyed, blond Clyde Colley of Akron, O., back again. They hope it can be arranged, through a formal adoption.

After Clyde's parents and his two brothers died from the effects of poison grape juice they drank at a picnic in the woods near Benton, Ark., the Mitchells, who have no children, took him into the home. Clyde, only member of the family to survive the poisoning, was taken back to Ohio after the trial of Mark H. Shank, Akron attorney who was sentenced to death for the murder of the boy's parents and brother.

"To say that we want him is putting it mildly," said Mrs. Thompson. "We did not fully realize what he meant to us until he was gone, but we felt that his people had first right to him and let them take him without protest."

The Thompsons have written to the juvenile court in Akron asking to adopt the boy.

Shank, 41, was sentenced to the electric chair on conviction of the quadruple slaying. The state charged he poisoned the Colleys because he feared exposure by Clyde's father, Alvin, over the theft of legal papers in which Shank was interested.

Employers Hiring From CWA Offices

LISBON, Jan. 4.—Employers of labor have begun to contact the general office here of the National Re-employment Service, which is in charge of F. E. Kinsey. So far, 9,521 unemployed men and women have registered in this county. Registrations are now being received only from 8 to 12 o'clock daily, except Saturday, when the office is closed to registration.

Approximately 50 men and women have obtained work during the last fortnight through this agency. As soon as possible, Kinsey said to employers, he proposes to contact all employers in the county, offering such employers the services of the office without cost, and in the hope that additional men and women can gain employment.

YOUTH STABBED DURING FIGHT

mobile when he was informed that his father was being attacked in front of the cafe. He and other members of his party returned immediately, he said.

Walking out of the auto, witnesses said, Breault began crossing the street and was met by Meldeka, Breault, according to police reports, struck Meldeka and knocked him to the street and, while the two continued their battle, friends of both men began fighting among themselves, police were informed.

Breault is Stabbed

The fighting stopped when Breault cried out that he had been stabbed and was seen lying in the street, blood gushing from wounds in his side and arm. He was rushed to the hospital by a friend while others notified police.

Patrolmen Nerr Count, Homer Veon and James Hassey responded to the call and began rounding up suspects in the case. Seven men were arrested and lodged in the jail but three were released early this morning.

Witnesses to the street fight said that it was too dark to testify as to who stabbed Breault and Police Chief Stoffer said that no direct testimony has yet been produced to support the victim's statement that Meldeka had wounded him.

Meldeka had not been questioned up until noon.

Stoffer reported that charges of street fighting and disorderly conduct will be filed against at least three of those now being held in the jail. A fourth suspect, he said, may be discharged this afternoon.

Father Is Held As Slayer of Children

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Police held John Piotrowski, 27, today as the slayer of his two children, while they searched for John Panfield, a roomer, allegedly beaten by Piotrowski and left for dead by him in a patch of weeds.

Piotrowski, police said, confessed to Police Captain John Placek and Deputy Coroner John J. Butler that he beat his wife, Ann, and his three-year-old daughter, Ann, with the barrel of a shot gun and drowned his infant son, John, Jr., in a tub of water yesterday. The girl died later in a hospital.

Authorities quoted Piotrowski as saying the motive was his discovery that his wife, who was seriously injured, had been friendly with Panfield. He said he chased Panfield from the home before slaying his children and beat him with the shotgun barrel.

Twenty policemen who searched the vicinity failed to find any traces of Panfield or his body, and expressed the belief he might only have been injured, escaping when he regained consciousness.

N.E.O. District Jotted With Crucial Cage Contests This Week

Big Ten League Foes, Tri-County Rivals to Clash in Big Battles

Basketball takes a firm stranglehold on the interest of North-eastern Ohio sports addicts as rival teams involved in various championship contests collide in a series of important passing duels this week.

While Salem High's unbeaten quintet seeks its fifth victory in a row here Saturday night, meeting Youngstown Chaney, members of the Big Ten and Tri-County leagues clash in crucial tilts in other sectors.

A Columbiana county game, Wellsville at Lisbon, is booked Friday night.

Brown Fears Chaney Team
The stock of the Youngstown Chaney team dropped considerably after the team bowed by a 26-18 score to Sharpsville Tuesday night but coach Herbert Brown is drilling his side with real seriousness, feeling certain that his squad is in for a hard battle.

Reserve teams of the two schools will clash in the prelim at 7:30. Davey Williams of Girard will referee both frays. Tickets are on sale at the V. L. Battin & company and J. H. Lease Drug company stores.

The Alliance-Massillon battle Friday night is the most important as regards this week's Big Ten league events. Another game, Dover at New Philadelphia, the same night, however, shouldn't be overlooked for the Phillies, in spite of a bad start, may upset their ancient neighbor and rival.

Two League Tilts Saturday
Two more league contests will be played Saturday night with Niles invading Alliance and Massillon tackling Dover at Dover.

East Liverpool's undefeated aggregation will be ranked as a really great quintet if it evades defeat in two contests slated during the week. The Potiers, ranked among the district's best, will oppose Steubenville Friday night and on Saturday oppose Sciencetown, 1933 N. E. O. district champ.

Invading Lisbon Friday night, Wellsville takes to the road again Saturday, playing at Akron Garfield. Youngstown South plays at Struthers and Chaney meets Warren at Warren in other Friday night battles. The Chaney-Salem game is the high spot on the Saturday night menu.

With the holiday vacation ended, basketball quintets of the Tri-County high school league are preparing this week for important clashes. Three league battles head the nine-game card scheduled Friday and Saturday nights.

The undefeated Louisville five will play host to Columbiana, while East Palestine will make its initial league start of the campaign by tackling Boardman on the same court Friday night. In the other league clash, Minerva defending champs of the circuit, will entertain East Palestine Saturday evening.

Minerva was undefeated in league play a year ago.

Tackle Old Rivals
Both Louisville and Minerva will invade the fair of old rivals for non-league battles. Minerva will be at Sallenville Friday night while Louisville will trek to Navarre. Lisbon will play host to Wellsville Friday night in a Columbiana county series fray while on the following night the county seat lads will invade Dalton.

Other games listed for Saturday night find Leontonia at Lowellville and Sebring invading Atwater. Louisville is expected to run its winning streak to six games with victories over both Columbiana and Navarre. Columbiana has broken even in its league games, winning from Leontonia and losing to Boardman. Navarre ranks twelfth in the standings of the Stark county Class B loop with one victory in five starts.

Boardman vs. Palestine
The real battle of the week looks to be between Boardman and East Palestine and the outcome of this game will have a lot of bearing on the league race. These two clubs and Louisville are the favorites to cop the 1933-34 championship. Boardman is tied with Louisville for the league leadership and has already stopped Leontonia and Columbiana. East Palestine is expected to win over Minerva Saturday. Last year,

Minerva was the only league five to halt East Palestine.

Lisbon with a three-game losing streak, appears doomed to go down in defeat before Wellsville in a county clash. Both schools have already been stopped by Salem, a favorite to cop the Columbiana county crown. Salem trounced Lisbon, 40 to 11, while Wellsville fell before the "Quakers" by a 40 to 20 count. On the following night, Lisbon will tackle a new foe in Dalton and may encounter plenty of trouble. Last week, Dalton succumbed to its alumni by a 25 to 22 score.

Minerva should break into the win column when it invades Sallenville Friday night while the hapless Leontonia five, still seeking its first win in two seasons, can't hope to win over the strong Lowellville aggregation. Sebring is expected to meet stubborn opposition at Atwater but should emerge victor.

Last Week's Games
Last week, Tri-County fives clicked off four wins in six starts in non-league settings. Louisville, Sebring, Columbiana and East Palestine defeated Alumni teams while Boardman lost to its grads. Columbiana was trimmed by Canfield. East Palestine, making its initial start of the season, looked very impressive in trimming the grads, 25 to 9. The grads scored but two goals from the field.

Too Late To Classify

Along the same lines as Pasteur in his conquest of hydrophobia, Dr. Park (left), director of the New York Department of Health, with his laboratory, and Dr. Maurice Brodie, of New York University, are on the track of a serum that gives promise of banishing the scourge of infantile paralysis. While cautioning against undue optimism, Park said he had succeeded in immunizing monkeys for varying periods against the dread disease.

ELYRIAN HEADS RUM ENFORCERS

E. G. Mathews and Force Of 60 Will Round Up Bootleggers

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Enforcement of Ohio's many-angled liquor laws was in the hands today of E. G. Mathews of Elyria who lost his post as state prohibition commissioner with the advent of repeal.

Mathews will head a force of 60 or more inspectors in rounding up bootleggers and permit law violators. Director John A. Hughes of the state liquor control board said.

He announced Mathews' appointment after a conference with Governor White in which the board participated. Mathews had been recommended as chief of the enforcement unit by the governor.

Meantime, enforcement of the state's provisions for proper labeling of whisky and other spirituous liquors continued at the behest of Earl H. Hanefeld, state director of agriculture. State pure food and drugs acts are administered by the agriculture department.

Hanefeld told Dr. James M. Doran, head of the distilled spirits institute, here yesterday that "the inspectors in the division of foods and dairies are under orders to continue to make buys of alleged whisky and forward it to their home offices. This will in turn be analyzed and where violations of the law are found, prosecutions will be instituted."

"It is not in my province to change the existing laws," he commented.

Dr. Doran had suggested the act be applied only to medicinal whisky, allowing distillers to sell blended whisky which did not meet U. S. pharmaceutical standards.

Previously Dr. Doran had informed the liquor control board that "state stores in Ohio will have a tough time operating if they require whisky to be aged four years."

He said such whisky could not be marketed at prices Ohioans were able to pay.

Chairman Edward T. Dixon announced he was willing to forego the four year requirement if labeling would increase the cost of whisky. "I am willing to go along with the federal regulations without setting up extra requirements for Ohio," Dixon declared.

The board decided that in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Akron, Youngstown, Canton, Lima and Steubenville boards of elections will handle permit applications. In all other counties, county auditors will handle the blanks, in addition to the board's Columbus office.

Governor White revealed that though a personnel of 1,000 may be needed to handle state monopoly, managements of state liquor stores will be filled without regard to civil service.

Mathews' salary as chief of the enforcement unit has not been fixed but is expected to be about $3,000 annually.

Dr. Gueit said that when the present "waiting list" of incurables are disposed of, the work of the eugenics courts, set up under the national sterilization law which became effective January 1, would be confined mostly to children coming out of school.

Only "urgent" cases will be dealt with in the near future. He said the 200,000 incurable inmates of Germany's public institutions would not be sterilized; only those who are "at large."

Paraguay and Bolivian representatives and members of the league commission who did not go to Asuncion came here from Montevideo to hasten extension of the agreement if the Paraguayan brand is successful.

Sources close to the belligerents, however, showed growing apprehension that renewal of fighting was unavoidable. The obstacle to the present conversations apparently is the old question of what portion of the Chaco is arbitrable if the combatants take the controversy to the world court at the Hague.

Paraguay is authoritatively represented as unwilling under any circumstances to allow arbitration of the territory allotted to it in the Hayes award of 1879, which Bolivia has not accepted—roughly a portion below the 23rd parallel, of which the River Verde is the northern boundary.

SHOWS RECEIPTS ON BARREL BEER

State Auditor Tracy Reveals $1,302,230 As Income

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Ohio's barrel beer tax has produced $1,302,230.47 revenue, the annual report of State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy disclosed today. The report also showed an operating funds balance of $3,864,232.19, which carried the state government comfortably out of the "red."

The beer revenue only started coming in last April 7, after the legalization of beer.

Receipts from other sources noted in the auditor's statement covering 1933 included: Cigarette stamps, $4,475,283.83; liquid fuel, $2,988,872.42 for public schools; federal aid to schools, $320,475.81; diversion of highway construction funds for poor relief, $2,030,000; beverage bottle tax, $396,967.47; mail tax, $71,557.20; cosmetics tax, $302,060.17; and admission tax, $857,901.23.

Still another source of revenue was that from the racing commission, which turned $104,139.89 into the state coffers and spent $18,549.99 of that amount for administration.

The volume of business transacted by the state during the year was shown by receipts of $191,698,375.63 and disbursements totaling $91,846,843.61. These figures include the trust funds that go into the keeping of the state treasury.

Receipts for highway construction were: Gas, $8,214,915.57; federal aid, $3,561,649.92; and refunders and reimbursements from counties, $301,431.98, total, $12,077,996.57.

Receipts for highway maintenance and repair total $12,182,895.24 and expenditures from highway funds for both construction and maintenance totaled $21,098,301.58. This was $16,000,000 less than in 1932.

The general revenue fund was left with a balance of $737,263.10.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Pertinent quotations from President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress:

"Powerful forces for recovery exist. It is by laying a foundation of confidence in the present and faith in the future that the upturn which we have so far seen will become cumulative."

"The cornerstone of this foundation is the credit of the government."

"If we maintain the course I have outlined, we can confidently look forward to cumulative beneficial forces, represented by increased volume of business. More general profit, greater employment, a diminution of relief expenditures, larger governmental receipts and repayments, and greater human happiness."

"The excess of expenditures over receipts this fiscal year amounts to over seven billion dollars."

"My estimates for the coming fiscal year show an excess of expenditures over receipts of two billion dollars."

"We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the national debt."

"The total debt, if increased by the sum of two billion dollars during the fiscal year, 1935, would amount to approximately $31,834,600,000 on June 30, 1935."

"It is my belief that so far as we can make estimates with our present knowledge, the government should seek to hold the total debt within this amount."

"It is clear that the necessity for relief and recovery will still be with us during the year 1934-35."

"In the next six months we shall have to borrow approximately six billion dollars of new money and in addition four billion dollars to meet maturities of a like amount."

Davies, Crosby In Friday's Film; "Chance At Heaven" Plays Tonight

A new team, one that promises to be a most delightful one, will be seen in the very late production, "Going Hollywood" which will play at the State Friday and Saturday. It stars Marion Davies and Bing Crosby.

Marion As Chorus Girl
The film, a musical, marks the return of the blond, charming comedienne, Miss Davies, who has not been seen since her very successful "Peg O' My Heart."

She will certainly be at home in the role of Sylvia, chorus girl, for she was a Legfield performer before she became a screen star—and her dancing is said to be exceptionally good.

The picture, an original story from the witty pen of Donald Ogden Stewart, is a key-hole view of the real Hollywood, yet one spiced with catchy song hits and dance ensembles, which make it entertaining screen material.

Six melodies have been created for the film by the team of H. B. Brown and Arthur Freed, authors of "Wedding Of The Painted Doll" and "The Old Woman In The Shoe."

Their new numbers are "Our Big Love Scene," "Going Hollywood," "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," "Temptation," "Cinderella's Fella" and "After Sundown."

Good Cast, Too
Crosby plays a role that is very much like his own life—that of Bill Williams, crooner. With these two are Fifi D'Orsay, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly (the clever comedienne who played opposite Thelma Todd in a short at the State not so long ago) and Bobby Watson.

Briefly, the story deals with a lonely girl in love with a crooner's voice, who trails him to Hollywood where he is to make his first picture. After much difficulty with a temperamental French actress, who likewise loves the crooner, she becomes a star in her own right.

"Chance At Heaven," with Joel McCrea, Ginger Rogers and Marian Nixon in leading roles, plays the State this evening. It is a light and entertaining tale all about the lives and loves of three young people, each of different personalities and make-up. The boy and girl are very much in love in their small town until the city girl happens along to make the boy see otherwise.

It is interesting to note that Miss Nixon, always cast as a very sweet, unsophisticated lassie is this time seen as "Gloria Franklin," rich and rather haughty, while Ginger Rogers enacts the good sport, "Marjorie Harris," who just steps out of the picture until the boy, "Blacky Gorman," realizes it is she he loves after all.
